

Kent Archives and Local History Service Presents
The coin hoards of
medieval Kent 1180 - 1560

A Talk by Dr Barrie Cook

Westgate Hall, Canterbury, CT1 2BZ

Monday 20 October 2025

6:30pm to 8pm (doors open at 5:45pm)

Image: Half-groat (2-pence) of Henry VIII from the Deal hoard © The Trustees of the British Museum

Dr Barrie Cook, former curator of medieval and early modern coins at the British Museum, presents a deep dive into Kent's medieval coin hoards.

This is a seated event with refreshments available to purchase.

Tickets are required for entry and cost £14. To book tickets contact Kent Archives by emailing archives@kent.gov.uk with quantity and your contact number.

SCAN ME

bit.ly/CoinHoardsEvent

kentarchives.org.uk

Kent Archives and Local History Service Presents
The coin hoards of
medieval Kent 1180 - 1560

A Talk by Dr Barrie Cook

Westgate Hall, Canterbury, CT1 2BZ

Monday 20 October 2025

6:30pm to 8pm (doors open at 5:45pm)

Image: Half-groat (2-pence) of Henry VIII from the Deal hoard © The Trustees of the British Museum

Dr Barrie Cook, former curator of medieval and early modern coins at the British Museum, presents a deep dive into Kent's medieval coin hoards.

This is a seated event with refreshments available to purchase.

Tickets are required for entry and cost £14. To book tickets contact Kent Archives by emailing archives@kent.gov.uk with quantity and your contact number.

SCAN ME

bit.ly/CoinHoardsEvent

kentarchives.org.uk

Kent Archives and Local History Service Presents

The coin hoards of medieval Kent 1180 - 1560

A Talk by Dr Barrie Cook

Most medieval coin hoards are modest in scale and were hidden, deposited or lost by members of the working rural population, the English peasantry, and by urban workers. Among the hoards covered are notable ones from Seasalter, Ickham, Dover, Meopham, Bredgar, Charing, Maidstone and Deal, running from the reigns of Henry II to Edward VI. These hoards will be considered in their time, place and social world. While it is almost never possible to explain exactly why any individual hoard was deposited, they can all be placed in a context of work and life.

Dr Barrie Cook was curator of medieval and early modern coins at the British Museum until Spring 2025. Part of his role was the cataloguing of new coin hoards from England from 1180 onwards and he is currently publishing the medieval hoards among these in detail. The first volume, English medieval coin hoards: age of the sterling penny, 1180-1351, appeared in January 2025; the second, English medieval coin hoards: from the return to gold to the Great Debasement, 1351-1560, is due in early 2026.

Entrance Location:

Please use the entrance located in the car park at Pound Lane, Canterbury CT1 2BZ.
What3Words: valley.nurse.flank

Image: The jug in which the Deal hoard was found © The Trustees of the British Museum

Kent Archives and Local History Service Presents

The coin hoards of medieval Kent 1180 - 1560

A Talk by Dr Barrie Cook

Most medieval coin hoards are modest in scale and were hidden, deposited or lost by members of the working rural population, the English peasantry, and by urban workers. Among the hoards covered are notable ones from Seasalter, Ickham, Dover, Meopham, Bredgar, Charing, Maidstone and Deal, running from the reigns of Henry II to Edward VI. These hoards will be considered in their time, place and social world. While it is almost never possible to explain exactly why any individual hoard was deposited, they can all be placed in a context of work and life.

Dr Barrie Cook was curator of medieval and early modern coins at the British Museum until Spring 2025. Part of his role was the cataloguing of new coin hoards from England from 1180 onwards and he is currently publishing the medieval hoards among these in detail. The first volume, English medieval coin hoards: age of the sterling penny, 1180-1351, appeared in January 2025; the second, English medieval coin hoards: from the return to gold to the Great Debasement, 1351-1560, is due in early 2026.

Entrance Location:

Please use the entrance located in the car park at Pound Lane, Canterbury CT1 2BZ.
What3Words: valley.nurse.flank

Image: The jug in which the Deal hoard was found © The Trustees of the British Museum